on the intangibly available category of experience It dwells on quieter modes of being political of making knowledge democratic and of seeing gendered language in the everyday In an unusual combination of real life incidents and textual examples it provides a palimpsest of what it is to be in a classroom in the domestic sphere straddling the manyness of language and of course in a constant mode of translation that remains incomplete and unconcluded Through both a poignant voice and rigorous questions Kothari asks what it is to live and teach in India as a woman a multilingual researcher and as both a subject and a rebel of the discipline of English She draws from multiple bhasha texts with an uncompromising eye on their autonomy and intellectual tradition The essays range from questions of knowledge affect caste shame and humiliation to other cultural memories Translation avoids the arrogance of the original it has the freedom to say it and not be held accountable which can make it both risky and exciting More importantly it also speaks after anuvaad rather than only for or instead and this ethic informs the way Kothari writes this book breaking new ground with gentle provocations
